Trespassing Innocence: Poems

Virginia R Cerenio Kearny Street Workshop

Trespassing Innocence: Poems by Virginia R. Cerenio, Paperback

Now as I was young and easy under the apple boughs
About the lilting house and happy as the grass was green,
The night above the dingle starry, Time let me.

Trespassing poems - Hello Poetry
This essay examines Blakes Songs of Innocence and of. Experience as a lens through They trespass, authors to themselves in all. Both what they judge and